USPA NEWS - A partnership between the European Union (EU) and the International Organization for Migration (IOM) is marking four years of supporting over 12,000 vulnerable migrants, including children, to voluntarily return and re-establish their homes across the Horn of Africa. Over half that total "some 6,300 men, women and children "are migrants assisted to voluntarily return to their countries of origin in Ethiopia, Somalia, Sudan, Djibouti, Kenya, Uganda and South Sudan; having been stranded and detained in places like Libya. Those returnees are among the over 8,200 who received support to reintegrate into their communities. The programme, the "EU-IOM Joint Initiative for Migrant Protection and Reintegration" (the EU-IOM Joint Initiative), has to date committed over EUR 56 million providing for migrants in the Horn of Africa.

"The programme has gone a long way in bringing different parties towards the common goal of saving lives and allowing many of those who had been stranded to start afresh. It is fulfilling a critical need in a region with significant migration movements, "? said Mohammed Abdiker, IOM's Regional Director for the East and Horn of Africa.------

In late February 2021, an agreement was signed with the Inter-Governmental Authority on Development (IGAD) to strengthen cross-border child protection response in the region. The programme has also funded three experts assigned to the African Union Commission who will work in migrant protection and labour migration. "We are pleased that the secondees are already making an impact in strengthening cooperation with the AU and working to mobilise support for migrants," said IOM's Senior Programme Coordinator Julia Hartlieb.
